Guard Patrols Falls; Milano Death Suspect

National Guardsmen from the Cameron area are on duty patrolling roads in Falls County in an effort to prevent further spread of anth.ax, deadly cattle disease from Falls into Milam County.

Sgt. John L. Lansford, technician at the Cameron armory, told The Herald that 13 men from the area unit left Tuesday morning for Marlin, which is the marshaling area for the Guard.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe Monday authorized use of National Guard helicopters and personnel to assist in containing the anthrax outbreak.

Animal health authorities at College Station were checking into the death of a cow near Milano to see if it was caused by anthrax. A report was due sometime Wednesday.

County Agent Bill McCutchen said Tuesday that all cattle deaths should be investigated by a veterinarian, and said the county has been having some cattle deaths caused by blackleg or other causes.

Vaccination of livestock can be done by producers, McCutchen said, however he recommended that vets be allowed to vaccinate any horses against the disease in case of possible reaction to the vaccine.

Sgt. Lansford said the Guardsmen will be manning roadblocks in Falls County and expect to be called for similar duty in Milam County "within the next few days." So far only Falls County has been put under quarantine for the outbreak.

Reports said some cattlemen in Falls were trying to move their animals out of the quarantined area, which is now counting deaths from anthrax in the hundreds.

The Texas Animal Health Commission urgently recommended that all cattle and horses in Falls, Milam, Robertson, Leon, Freestone, McLenna, Limestone and Bell counties be vaccinated with a sterne-type vaccine.

Even with vaccination, which takes 10 to 14 days to be effective, cattle can still contract the disease within that time limit and die, officials said.

Vaccinated animals must withheld from slaughter for 42 days. This will seriously affect area cattlemen, who have been reeling under low prices at the market and a summer drought which is causing the animals to graze grass close to the ground.

The deadly anthrax bacteria can live in the ground indefinitely under all conditions, and may be contracted by cattle, mules, horses, goats and sheep.

The National Guard helicopters are being used in locating animal carcasses in remote areas. State lww requires complete burning withing 24 hours all carcasses of animals which die of anthrax.

Officials are concerned about the possible spread of the disease by predators such as coyotes and buzzards, and horseflies.

The Commission placed two premise quarantines on ranches near Teague, in Freestone County, and near Milano, im Milam County. Deaths there were tentatively diagnosed as from anthrax. Also reported dead Monday was a cow near Lott, about 15 miles west of the Brazos. It was the second death reported west of the river. The first, reported Friday, was not from anthrax.

Minor Injuries Reported In Two Accidents

Police and highway patrol investigated two accidents over the weekend with only minor injuries reported.

At Cameron Sunday at 7 p.m. traffic was blocked for a time on East 4th street when a pickup pulling a trailer load of maize jacknifed near Green and Boedeker Furniture Store.

The trailer struck the rear of a car driven by Harry Creasy of Houston, who was not injured. Driver of the pickup was Willie Moraw of Rt. 2, Buckholts. He was not hurt.

DPS trooper Jerry Benson of Rockdale reported a one-car accident near the Cedar Creek bridge on Highway 36 two miles south of Milano Saturday night.

A car driven by Mrs. Laverne Grubbs of Houston ran off the road and hit a culvert. Mrs. Grubbs suffered injry to a shoulder and her husband received a mouth injury. They were treated at Richards Hospital in Rockdale and released. Their two sons riding in the car were not hurt.

Two Charged In Car Theft

Capture by state troopers after a high speed chase Saturday night near Milano resulted in two men being placed in Milam County jail charged with car theft.

Troopers Milton Wright and Jerry Benson spotted the two men in a van which was reported stolen in Killeen Saturday. The two arrested were Patrick Boucher, driver, who was also charged with driving while intoxicated, and Steven Greenwood, both of Pasadena.

CTAS To Survey Cameron Drivers

The Central Texas Alcohol Safety Action Project will be conducting the second volunteer driver survey on July 19, 20, 26 and 27.

Drivers in the survey areas in Killeen, Copperas Cove, Lampasas Gatesville, Cameron, Temple, Belton, Harker Heights and Nolanville. may anticipate being stopped on those Friday and Saturday nights and asked to participate in the survey.

Survey procedures will be the same as last year, and will begin at 7 p.m. and end at 3 a.m. all four nights. The survey will again be done in coordination with Central Texas College, the research and evaluation authority for the Central Texas ASAP.

Drivers will be directed from the traffic flow, informed that they have committed no traffic violation, and have their drivers licenses checked. An explanation of the survey will follow, and drivers will be asked if they are willing to participate.

Those who agree will spend about 10 minutes completing a questionaire and taking a breath test. Those who choose not to participate or who are transient, will be directed back into traffic.

Drivers who might have been drinking and whose breath tests indicate an illegal level of blood acohol concentration, will not be allowed to go back onto the highway, but will be taken home or asked to have someone come for them.

The base survey conducted last year provided information on region-utilized by state and federal agencies, as well as CTASAP, in evaluating the drinking driving problem. Information gained during this survey will be used in the same way.

Data collected last year revealed that 8 of 10 drivers interviewed drank alcoholic beverages. In some survey areas, as many as from 2 to 5 of every 10 drivers registered a blood alcohol concentration level that was over the safe-driving level of .05%. As many as 3 out of 10 drivers in one area had blood alcohol concentration levels exceeding the legal limit of 10%.

Eleven Cases Of Hepatitis Confirmed Here

Doctors have confirmed 11 cases of infectious hepatitis in Cameron area residents in recent days and Dr. E. Douglas Perrin, acting director of the Milam County Health Unit, said there are two suspected cases.

Dr. Perrin said he wouldn't term it an epidemic, but that precautions should be taken, especially careful hand washing after using the bathroom.

Symptoms of infectious heptatitis are similar to virus infections and include aches in the head, back or joints, fever, nausea and vomiting, tenderness over the liver or 'heaviness' in the abdomen.

An outbreak of heptatitis was reported at Ben Milam School in April when 5 cases were confirmed. Ron Holcombe, county santitation officer said 1 additional case had been confirmed since the spring outbreak.

THE MALL'S first family was born and raised in one of the oaks dotting the area as scissor tails hatched out and grew to flying size. Latest observations show that the birds have gone but their nest remains.

TJC Offers New Fall Program

Students who wish to further their education, but who demonstrate a need for additinal preparation in order to successfully master college level work will have their educational needs met by Temple Junior College's new Developmental Studies Program which begins this fall.

The one-year program includes developmental course work in Mathematics, English, Reading, and Personal and Social Understanding, explained Tom Scott, director of Developmental Studies.

Two classrooms at TJC will serve as the hub of the new program, one serving as a laboratory with audio-visual teaching aids, and the other as a room for informal discussion group meetings. Financing of the equipment for the new program is shared by TJC and a Title VI grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Scott said.

In addition to being open to students interested in better preparing themselves for college-level work, the Developmental Studies Program is required of all students who score 12 or below on the ACTcomposite score. Students who demonstrate needs in certain areas also may be required to register for one or more of the Developmental Studies courses, Scott added.

"The new program and its courses are geared toward the individual students needs," CScott explained. Classrooms will not be conducted along the lines of hard and fast lectures; instead, in addition to the laboratory, all classroom situations will be flexible and informal, he said. In the classroom, the student wil engage in some individual work and some group study.

One of the particular benefits to students from this new program is the fact that students are placed at the level at which they are equipped to work; then, they move forward to higher levels of academic work. This is preferable to forcing the student into a situation which is beyond his background, Scott explained. The program will help the student improve his skills so he can do college transfer work or be prepared to enter any of the various vocational/technical program available at TJC, he said.

More information on the program can be obtained from Scott by calling 773-6691, Ext. 41.

Volunteers Called To Engine Fire

Cameron volunteer firemen were called to a deisel engine on fire about 11:45 a.m. Sunday at Hoyte. It took two units of the fire department to put out the fire on the Santa Fe engine.

Firemen said the fire started in an electric motor which ignited fuel on the engine.

No injuries were reported.

The Anthrax Response...

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, among others, is responding quickly to the Falls County-based threat of anthrax.

Anthrax vaccine is being furnished Milam and neighboring Bell County for inoculation. No cases had been reported at mid-week in either of the counties bordering the stricken Falls County, now under complete anthrax quarantine.

At early week, animal death count is somewhere between 200 and 300 animals. And fires of burning carcasses can be seen from the air.

An eight-county area is included in the inoculation plan proposed through the Texas Animal Health Commission: Falls, Milam, Bell, Limestone, Freestone, Leon, McLennan and Robertson.

Officials are urging cattlemen outside this area not, repeat, not to innoculate at this time.

Cause is low-level foraging in fields, which takes cattle to soil or roots where anthrax virus exist. In normal season, cattle don't eat as clo e to the ground as smaller grazing animals. The disease is more often associated with sheep, but it is contagious among most animals and possibly humans.

All the activity faces a real need for immediate steps to contain what must be considered major proportions in Falls County. The stakes are enormous, considering that livestock has become more than one-third agribusiness base in Central Texas counties, and considering the maize consumed, possibly even more.

We have reason to follow the expert advice of the cattle industry.

Clearing Kissinger...

Senate investigators have cleared Henry Kissinger of any responsibility for initiating wiretaps among State Department personnel. He followed higher authority in relaying instructions to tap, according to Senator William Fulbright.

Fulbright also finds basis for attacks concerning wiretaps emanating from the Secretary of Defense, whose policies would conflict with those of detente, which Secretary of State Kissinger has developed in the Middle East and Moscow and Peking, preceding President Nixon.

It is becoming apparent the Pentagon is concerned about detente, which places Kissinger in a tentative positvon if the President is impeached despite enormous foreign policy successes.

The military establishment may find detente particularly distasteful because of continuing cutbacks in defense allocations though Russia's continue high or higher.

And this development suggests the overview a president maintains over conflicting dedications: one to extending peace and the other to defending it in terms of some kind of Cold War.

Since Kissinger put the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to the test, he put his job and Nixon detente on the line. And Senator Fulbright, a Democrat, for one, could find no fault with Kissinger's actions. in the wiretap question. And the effects toward detente are among the triumphs of this administration.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

Rep. Henry Helstoski (N.J.)" As we all know, Common Cause is the highly successful and unique 'citizen's lobby ' headed by former HEW Secretary John Gardner. Founded in 1970, membership in Common Cause has grown continually and the group now numbers 230,000 members.

"An interesting article concerning Common Cause appeared in... worldwife, a appeared in .. WORLDWIDE, a magazine published by the Council of Religion and International Affairs... I would like to take this opportunity to share this illuminating article with my colleagues .." (Excerpts follow):

One of Common Cause's major targets has been the need for campaign reform as founder John Gardner put it metaphorically:

"We began with systemic repair. As I listened to people listing all the great problems they intend to solve. I think of people listve. I think of people sitting in an ancient automobile by the side of the road. The tires are flat, and the steering wheel is broken, and the drove shaft is bent, but they're engaged in a great arguument as to whether they should go to Phoenix or San Franscosco or the Oregon Coast, and in my imagination I am stanking by the side of the road saying,' You're not going anywhere till you fix the g-- d--- car.'

To this end Common Cause is generally credited with getting the eighteen-year-vote amendment passed; initiating the litigation which forced the Nixon campaign to reveal its contributors prior to PApril 7, 1972; forcing an end to the seniority charimanship of House committees, supporting the passage of the Women's Rights Amendment; and monitoring campaign finances in the New York City mayoral primary.

At this point its membership is 50 per cent Democratic, the other half split between Independents and Repubilicans. In the yearly report of lobbyists required by law, Common Cause found itself in the unlikely position of declaring the highest expenditures of any lobby on Capitol Hill, $126.000.

The Common Cause proreflects the feelings of the outsider; a desire to know what is going on, to be able to get 'inside.'

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Common Cause is one of 246 registered lobby groups which include, Bankers; Bakers, Oil; Steel; Utilities; Automobiles; Insurance; Soft Drinks; Indians; AAA: PTA: AMA; AFL - CIO; Food Chains; Bicycles; Dentists; Hospitals; Milk Producers; etc.

Delegates Limping Back For Try At Showdown

Fitting together an acceptable constitutional revision package proved to be fully as thorny a job as the most pessimistic forecasters maintained.

Constitutional Convention delegates limped back to Austin this week to try again for a showdown two-thirds majority vote after rejecting 91-86 the initial submission proposal which they had stitched together piece-by-piece earlier.

Hang-ups ranged over a wide area—from the separate right-to-work proposition (which is bitterly opposed by organized labor) to internal provisions of the basic revision document.

Some persistent critics argued special interests had too big a hand in drafting the revision. Members of all factions disagreed over sections of the education article—including guaranteed equal opportunity and earmarked college building funds.

First approaches at compromise centered on efforts to eliminate some of the five "separate submission" items—that is, proposals not included in the basic revision.

$72 MILLION TEXAS SHARE—Texas received $72 million in federal revenue-sharing funds for the final quarter of fiscal 1974.

The state government's share is $24,260,347—the same as third quarter of fiscal '74.

Checks will go to all levels of government which are eligible for revenue-sharing funds. About $48 million will benefit cities, counties and other local units.

TEXAS DOMINANT — Texas still dominates the livestock industry on the basis of 1973 statistics.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said Texas last year produced more than twice as many cattle and calves as the second place state, Iowa — 16,250,000 head, compared to Iowa's 7,660,000.

Sheep and lamb production in Texas also topped the nation, and Texas ranked among the nation's top 10 dairy cattle states. Hog production in the state totalled 1,050,000 head in 1973.

HEARINGS BEGIN — First of 14 Texas Water Quality Board hearings began in Fort Worth and Dallas last week in an effort to find a suitable way to dispose of toxic industrial wastes.

Testimony will also be taken in Beaumont, Port Arthur, Mexia, San Antonio, Pasadena, Corpus Christi, Brownsville, El Paso, Midland, Amarillo, Longview and Austin.

Briscoe named Sister Austin Cusimano of Waco and David A. Garrett of San Antonio to the Advisory Hospital Council and reappointed four present members.

AG OPINIONS — Financial records and information on employees' salaries in a school district are subject to public disclosure, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

- The public has a right to examine and duplicate lists of registered voters who participated in a school board election.
- Hospitals will not lose their tax-exempt status due to incidental operation of a blood bank for public charity where no rent is charged.
- Information provided by banks to local tax assessor-collectors identifying stockowners and size and value of their holdings is public record.
- State employees must complete 15 or 20 years of employment to qualify for 10 and 14 hours vacation time for each month on the job. Sick leave can be accumulated without limitation.
- Surplus maintenance tax receipts of school districts and junior colleges may be pledged as payment for certificates of indebtedness under law, whether or not the tax election occurred before or after effective date of the act.
- How student service fees are to be charged is decision for governing boards of each instutution of higher education.

COURTS SPEAK—The Third Court of Civil Appeals, upholding an Austin district court, said the Railroad Commission can force Lo-Vaca Gathering Company to apportion gas to Austin, San Antonio and Lower Colorado River Authority in the public interest.

Courts can enjoin picketing by strikers only where there is violence or a threat to order, the Supreme Court held.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

If a person pinched himself every time he hears or reads something it's impossible to believe these days he'd stay black and blue. It's wall-climbing to hear a witness in Washington solemnly swear he can remember one thing in his favor and can't at all recall another thing that'd convict him.

But one of the oldest things I've read lately, having nothing to do with remembering, was a statement the other day by the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Herbert Stein.

In opposing a 5 to 10-billion-dollar tax cut to slow down inflation, Mr. Stein said it wouldn't do any good. "We shouldn't be putting that much money in the hands of the people because they'd only go out and spend it," he said.

"Wait a minute," I said to myself before hunting for a new spot to pinch, "you mean the government will keep that 5 to 10-billion-dollar denied tax cut and put it in a savings and loan account? You mean the Federal government, which has over-spent its income every year for the past 25 or 30 and is now over 300 billion dollars in debt, is lecturing the people for spending money?"

I got up and went for a long walk, maybe an economist can but I can't understand why if the government spends 10 billion dollars it's all right, but if the people do it's inflationary.

In fact, I have as much trouble understanding economists as economists have understanding the economy. For instance, Economist Stein said that inflation should be blamed on the people for lack of self-discipline, for too many demands, and that they should return to the "old time religion" of saving and controlling their desire.

This is true, people shouldn't spend more than they make and ought to add to their savings every pay day, but have you ever stopped to think what would happen if everybody did? If everybody saved and saved till we all had say $200,000 apiece drawing 8 per cent interest, or $16,000 a year, which ought to be enough to live on, how much do you think $16,000 would be worth in buying power? Probably $250, and everybody would have to go back to work again.

It doesn't pay to think too much about economics. It's safer to just go on like we are, stopping every now and then to cuss the government.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

The Family Lawyer

Phyllis was having tea in an open-air cafe when she spied a wallet under a nearby table. A look inside revealed $900 in cash but no identification. Dutifully, Phyllis left the wallet with the proprietor of the cafe, to be held for a possible claimant.

Months passed, and no claimant appeared. Finally Phyllis decided it was now hers to keep. But the proprietor demurred.

"The wallet was found on my premises," he pointed out in a court hearing. "Therefore, unless the original owner shows up, it belongs to me."

However, the court ordered him to hand the wallet and the money over to Phyllis. The court said lost property found in a public place, not traceable to the original owner, may be retained by the finder.

Most courts endorse this rule. Unclaimed money (or other valuables) found in public places, like the lobby of a hotel or the

It may indeed matter, though, if the item was not technically lost but only mislaid (that is, laid down on purpose, then left behind by mistake).

Such a case arose when a customer in a barber shop noticed a wallet that had been forgotten on a table. When no owner could be located the customer and the barber went to court to settle the right to the wallet.

This time, the court ruled in favor of the barber, not the customer. The court said the fact that the owner of the wallet had originally placed it on the table meant that he had entrusted it to the custody of the shop.

Inflation Termed Worst In Peacetime History

The United States is in the grip of inflation more severe than anything experienced in its peacetime history, one home management specialist said this week.

She's Mrs. Doris Myers, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Since 1900, cost of living climbed for 54 years, stayed about the same for seven years and went down in only 13," Mrs. Myers noted.

"Reports in U. S. News and World Report' show that the $1 of 1900 buys the same amount that you must pay nearly $6 for today," she continued.

Incomes do not stretch as far as they used to--in spite of pay raises, families are having to make do with less.

"American workers' real income--goods and services that the worker's money will actually buy- peaked materially during 1971 and 1972. It reached an all time high in 1972 and has been coming down ever since," she said.

"Studies show that taxes and inflation caused the average worker's standard of living to start a decline in 1970.

"The last few years have seen inflation raging, with incomes increasing much slower than prices. The Consumer Price Index now stands at 10.7 per cent higher than May, 1973," she reported.

Labor Department Studies show the average worker has 15.6 per cent less money to spend than he had one year ago.

"If inflation continues at its current rate, the 1969 dollar will buy only 57 cents' worth of goods in 1979," Mrs. Myers noted.

"If prices continue soaring at this rate, a house now selling for $37,500 will be priced at $51,700 by 1979. Food for four per week now costing $54.40 will be $80.50 in 1979."

A typical worker with a wife and two children who received a $330 raise last year has actually suffered a decrease in buying power of $362.

"A Social Security pensioner living alone on an income of $2,140 has actually lost $198 in buying power within the last year.

COUNTY AGENT S NOTES

Grain Harvest Moving Along

By Bill McCutchen

The grain sorghum harvest has moved along at a fast pace in Milam county with the crop described as good by most farmers, even though yields are often below 72 and 73 levels.

The price has been generally good with much of the crops bringing about 4.00 per cwt.

The cotton crop, such as it is about made. Dr. Charles Cole, Extension Entomologist and I checked Milam county cotton fields July 10th and found that generally speaking the cotton crop was made and it is too late for a rain to be any benefit. As far as both cotton and grain sorghum are concerned dry weather would be in order now, with isolated exceptions of course.

The cotton insect situation is usually not too disturbing at present. The bollworm has not been much of a problem even in irrigated fields where late season application were not made. Weevil populations are heavy in many fields but natural shedding is occuring anyway, and where sufficient squares are available for feeding and egg lay weevil population is causing very little economic damage.

Even though rain wouldn't benefit crops as this stage much, pastures and ranges are reaching the critical point and without rains in the near future cattle will be moving to market due to drouth.

If your pastures are short supplemental feeding is in order. A little feed now could pay off next year in an increased calf crop.

Handbook Available On Plant Diseases

All you ever wanted to know about plant diseases is contained in the new "Texas Plant Disease Handbook."

The handbook has been prepared by plant pathologists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and contains disease descriptions and approved chemical control recommendations for all major crops and ornamentals, points out Dr. Wendell Horne, extension plant pathologist Texas A&M University.

Sections of the handbook are tabbed for easy reference and include cereal crops, fiber and oil crops, forages, sugar crops, vegetables, fruits, nuts, flowers, shrubs, lawn and turf, and trees.

The handbook also features a complete section on chemical disease control, with a listing of chemicals approved by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Horne notes that the handbook, which is in the form of a loose-leaf binder, will be updated periodically. At present a section on resistant varieties is being developed.

Information on the handbook is available from the Extension Plant Pathology Section, Plant Sciences Building, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

A copy is on hand at each county Extension office in the state, and Horne invites those interested in the handbook to check with their county agent for a review of the handbook.

Farm Operators Should Develop Safety System

Since family members themselves are the victims in most farm and ranch accidents, farm and ranch operators should consider developing a "safety system" to eliminate these accidents.

Wayne Keese, agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service suggests the "Three E" approach to such a system: engineering (elimination of hazards), education (obtaining knowledge) and enforcement (supervision of workers).

Keese cites figures by the National Safety Council which show that 89 per cent of all farm and ranch accidents happen to family members while only 8 per cent of all farm and ranch occur to employed farm workers and the remaining 3 per cent to family guests and other visitors. Thus he cites the need for a safety system for family members to reduce farm and ranch accidents which cause more than 500,000 disabling injuries and 6,000 deaths each year.

According to the Texas A & M University System specialists, the "education or knowledge" factor of developing a safety system is of utmost importance as it is based on locating accident hazards and then correcting them.

Almost two - thirds of the injuries of farm and ranch families are work-related. About 20 per cent occur in barns and other structures around the home, 15 per cent in home yards, 14 per cent in both barn yards and fields, 10 per cent in homes and 8 per cent on public roads.

Farm machinery is involved in 20 per cent of all injuries, with tractors having a hand in one-fourth of these accidents. Power and hand tools and motor vehicles each cause 12 per cent of all farm and ranch accidents, and animals are involved in 11 per cent of the injuries.

"Start your farm and ranch safety system by inspecting your complete operation and eliminating any and all hazards," advises Keese. "Eliminating such things as trash, litter and junk in and around the home and other buildings can prevent many injuries.

"Also, be a stickler for the safety features on various power tools and equipment. Keep all guards and shields in place and observe the safety rules listed in the operator's manual for each piece of equipment.

"Of course, involve all members of the family in developing the safety system. After all, their safety and well-being is at stake," warns Keese.

Pay Due For Brucellosis Reactors

Texas cattlemen with brucellosis reactors in their breeding herds now are eligible to receive federal indemnity payments provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), when infected animals are marketed for slaughter.

The indemnity will be paid only on reactors found in complete official herd tests -- not in sales yards -- points our Dr. E. S. Cox, area director of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), Austin.

"The decision to make the payments was made at the request of the Texas Animal Health Commission, to strengthen efforts to eradicate brucellosis," Dr. Cox said.

All states now participate in USDA's brucellosis indemnity program. At present, about 99 percent of the nation's cattle are free of brucellosis. But the remaining 1 percent continue to threaten our livestock industry, Dr. Cox points out. A large percentage of the infected herds are in southern and southeastern states.

Seed Tour Planned At Giddings

An open invitation has been extended by Agriculture Commissioner John C. White to a tour of the seed laboratory and varietal testing facilities in Giddings July 24 at 2 p.m.

The laboratory and testing sites are located one and a half miles east of Giddings on Highway 290.

Texas Department of Agriculture personnel will be present to guide visitors throughout the facilities, which are perhaps the best equipped in the world.

"Additional test plots have been planted this year, including 60 different pasture grass plots, 23 for various turf grasses, and 982 sorghum plots which consist of 301 varieties," Commissioner White stated.

SEMINAR SLATED

All agribusinesses in the state will want to make this one on their calendars -- a Financial Management Seminar for Agribusiness Firms Oct. 22-25 at Texas A&M University. According to an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the seminar will offer tools and methods to evaluate the feasibility of investments and to analyze financial problems.

Cotton, Wheat Outlook . . . Screwworms Moving . . . Pond Control Talked . . . Many Frozen Desserts

OUTLOOK FOR agriculture in Texas is not as rosy as it was in 1973. The wheat crop--already harvested--is about a third less than it was last year, and the cotton crop is not expected to be as good. The reason is the weather, mainly drouth in the Low and High Plains, but also some floods and hail in the Lubbock area. According to "Howell's Cotton Letter," printed in Lubbock, a survey of ginners shows they expect this crop to yield about 1,502,000 bales on the High Plains, which is about 52 per cent of the 1973 crop. USDA had predicted that 14,500,000 acres would be planted to cotton in the United States, compared to 12,400,000 in 1973; but Natural Fibers Economic Research at the University of Texas said that was high and that cotton acreage in Texas is lower in 1974 than it was in 1973. "At the present time a severe moisture condition exists on the Texas Plains, where nearly 80 per cent of the Texas cotton was produced in 1973-74." On the other hand, the cotton crop in the Blacklands is three to four weeks ahead of last year and growing conditions are reported ideal with little insect infestation yet.

SCREWWORMS have been found recently in Comanche, Somervell, San Saba, Hill, and Parker County, according to Dr. M.E. Meadows who runs the screwworm eradication program at the plant in Mission. This is the fartherest north the pests have been reported this year. Gulf Coast ticks are on the increase, and July, August, and September are their most active months. That may contribute to the spread of screwworms unless cattlemen are especially careful of their herds. They should check cattle as often as possible, and if there is an infestation, samples should be taken and sent to the laboratory at Mission. The Screwworm Eradication Program releases sterile flies in the area of known infestations.

MORE CONTROL of farm ponds is in the talking and studying stage at present, and may be something farmers and ranchers want to watch. The Water Resource Conservation and Development Task Force is studying recommendations of the Professional Engineers Society. Purpose of the recommendation is to save water which would be lost to seepage, evaporation, and transpiration from unnecessary tanks. A task force report asks that unregulated ponds be limited to 10-acre feet with less than two acres of surface area. The plan asks the Water Rights Commission to issue permits, or control, all ponds larger than 10-acre feet.

FROZEN DESSERTS in Texas last year totalled 61,511,000 gallons, and in that amount was 31,632,000 gallons of ice cream. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says that there were 7,996,000 gallons of ice milk produced in Texas in 1973, 2,875,000 gallons of milk sherbet, 18,813,000 gallons of mellorine. The Reporting Service said that manufactured dairy products used 24 per cent of the Texas milk production last year, or the whole milk equivalent of 771,658,000 pounds. That included 3,805,000 pounds of butter, 19,323,000 pounds of cottage cheese curd, 24,502,000 pounds of creamed cottage cheese and 5,349,000 pounds of partially cream cottage cheese (less than four per cent milkfat).

COMMERCIAL vegetable growers in the Rio Grande Valley are getting land ready for fall vegetables, as the harvest of spring crops is nearly over. There are some okra and tomatoes still available in the Valley, and a few honeydews and bell peppers are still being harvested in that section.

Supercharge your favorite worm killer with *GUTHION insecticide and you've got a combination that delivers unmatched control of all major cotton insects.

GUTHION adds its own potency against bollworms to give you a thorough initial cleanup of these insects, as well as boll weevils, plant bugs, fleahoppers and aphids.

Even more important, GUTHION has residual activity that continues to control weevils, plant bugs and sucking insects while beneficial insects reestablish dominance. This extra control from GUTHION and nature's helpers can mean fewer sprays and real savings in insecticide costs.

So, insist that combination insecticides used on your cotton contain GUTHION, the supercharger that adds potency to the initial cleanout, and residual control that helps you grow better cotton, and more of it—and save money at the same time!

If handy, pre-mixed combinations of GUTHION are not available in your area, GUTHION can be tank-mixed with certain insecticides as it is applied.

Combinations containing GUTHION also control a wide range of insects that can cut soybean yields, too.

State Insurance Board Ranks High In Nation

By Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby

For sheer size and scope few of the state's regulatory agencies can match the day-to-day, year-to-year importance of the State Board of Insurance.

In short, this agency is charged with the supervision and regulation of what is one of the most important economic segments of the state's financial makeup--the insurance industry.

Texas has 1,677 licensed insurance companies--more than any other state.

The insurance industry paid the state more than $87 million in premium taxes and fees during the last fiscal year. In light of that, the State Board of Insurance with its 600 employees cost just $7.1 million, leaving a tidy profit for the state.

Insurance is big business in Texas, not just in dollars, but in the types of services that companies render to Texas residents.

An internal study of the State Insurance Board by an internationally-known consultant firm last year ranked us among the "top three insurance regulatory agencies" in the nation.

The Board's rate-making authority plays a vital role in the price and quality of insurance protection in Texas. Likewise, the Board is responsible in guarding against fraud and deception in the insurance market-place.

During the last fiscal year, the Board approved 10,068 policy forms and disapproved some 3,138 policy forms.

The Board acts as the licensing agent not only for companies but for agents and claims adjustors as well.

Of major significance to the Agents License Section was the initiation of its conversion to a computer processing program of over 75,000 agent licenses.

The Board, in addition to monitoring all phases of insurance, has been active in recent months in developing alternative forms of health care delivery.

Recently, Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie and my office jointly conducted a seminar on the potential and affects of Health Maintenance Organizations in Texas.

The Board also has undertaken a study with the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs to provide a comprehensive overview on this aspect of health care.

In summary, the State Insurance Board performs a major public service in the administration and enforcement of the Texas insurance laws, working to assure a healthy and competitive industry that will provide an adequate and useful product at a reasonable cost.

Parents can do more than anyone else to encourage their child's creative ability-if they only will.

Youths who fully utilize their creative capacities are invariably the ones whose parents have encouraged their abilities and skills.

Several practical ways parents can help young people respond creatively are:

-- Provide an atmosphere in which each child is accepted as he is and in which he feels he belongs, has status, and respect of adults and peers

-- Help each child understand and accept himself and his own thinking.

-- Build each child's confidence. Encourage him to try, and to accept his results, whatever they may be.

-- Provide each child freedom -- not freedom from responsibility, but freedom to explore, to experiment by himself and with his environment -- freedom to learn.

-- Reward the inventive, the different. Don't always follow a prescribed formula rigidly -- leave room for new things to happen and develope.

--Always search for alternatives, and help each child find "other ways". Encourage him to look beyond the obvious.

-- Help him develop a questioning attitude -- one that makes him want to ask "why" and not accept things just because someone says they are true.

-- Listen to each child. Understand his thinking and feeling. See how the situation or problem looks to him. Show empathy.

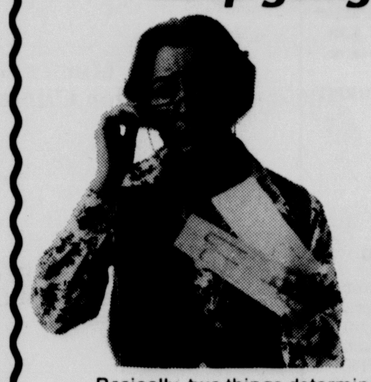
"Why do my electric bills keep going up?"



If you're like most Texas Power & Light customers, your electric bills are higher now than they were, say, a year ago.

Basically, two things determine your cost for electric service: the amount you use and the price of each unit—called a "kilowatt-hour"—of that amount.

From 1963 to 1973, the average annual use by TP&L residential customers increased from 4,446 kilowatt-hours to 10,282 kilowatt-hours. You'll probably find one or more reasons for your greater usage in the answers to several questions.

Is your family group larger than it was ten years ago? Have you added a room to your home or moved into a larger home? Have you acquired one or more new major appliances, such as a food freezer, range, washer, dryer or air-conditioner?

Speaking of air-conditioning, this is the time of year when many central systems, window units, attic fans, etc. are operated day and night. Air-conditioning alone can account for a sizeable increase in your electric bill.

As already mentioned, increased usage has been the main reason for increased cost. This tends to disguise the fact that the average per-unit price of TP&L residential electricity was about 2¾ cents in 1963 and only about 2¼ cents in 1973.

We'd like to tell you that the price will continue to go down, but, unfortunately, this will not be the case. In early 1972, and again in March of this year, the rising costs of producing and supplying electric power made it necessary for TP&L to obtain increases in the price of electricity. Additional increases are certain to be needed in the years ahead. It's the only way we can continue to provide the dependable electric service you want and expect.

KINGDOM HALL ADDITION

Kingdom Hall Addition Nears Completion Here

Nearing completion is the 1300 square foot addition to the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses located at 208 E. 22nd in Cameron.

Most of the work has been done by volunteer labor on the part of the members, working at it one day a week, Saturday, since they began the project in April.

"Because of the increasing interest in the work of Jehovah's Witnesses, it was necessary to add on a larger auditorium," Raymond E. Waldron, presiding minister of the group said. "The new auditorium will seat 150 with an overflow area of 50 to 75 more, " he continued.

The Cameron addition is styled in the Mediterranean motif. The auditorium has a vaulted ceiling with a blown accoustical finish and open beams. The walls are wainscoted with dark Spanish oak, the floor is carpeted in deep red mini-shag.

Antique gold chandeliers hanging from the beams light the auditorium and the room is accented with arches and a photo-mural of the ocean at one end, and a wallpaper mural of the Mediterranean scene at the other. Sliding glass doors will lead to a brick-enclosed, lighted garden. A graceful stuccoed arch bordered by wrought iron railings and accented by candeled wall fixtures is at the entrance.

Brick veneer will face the front of the new addition and a wall will extend along the lighted walkway. Volunteer brick-layers are expected to complete the work in August.

Late September has been set for open house and dedication ceremonies, Waldron said, and the public will be invited.

KEEPING IN STEP

You don't have to be "square" to go to church. The image of dour individuals with "holier-than-thou" attitudes is as old fashioned today as people dancing the minuet.

Take the Adamses, for example. They aren't youngsters, to be sure, but they are very much in step with the times, and their home is a haven for teenagers. Mr. Adams is a lawyer, who works with kids who have been in trouble. Mrs. Adams is on the local school committee and also helps the Girl Scouts.

The Adamses like to walk to church each Sunday and to discuss the sermon on the way home. Their minister is "with it" too—he strives to counsel his parishoners on the dilemmas that confront Christians today.

The Adamses, their minister, their church—all a part of today.

Are you?

SURROUNDED by his wife, Vivian, and their seven children, Frank Urick declares, "I believe in rural living, and I want my kids to believe in it as I do." The Uricks, of Montana, and others like them are the subjects of the National Geographic Society's latest book, "Life in Rural America."

Farm To City Flood Down

Americans are on the move again, a determined current running against the long-time flood from farm to city.

They may be only a steady trickle so far, but they are changing their ways for two kinds of reasons, born of experience.

One - time rural Americans, now that they've seen the big cities and perhaps lived there for some years, are heading back to where they came from.

Ex - city folks, now that they've seen the big cities and perhaps lived there for some years, are heading back to where they came from.

They've learned a bit about life down on the farm, are heading off to where they think they want to be.

In small towns, farms, and ranches across the country they were located and interviewed by writers of the National Geographic Society's latest book, "Life in Rural America." The book's words and photographs portray a world longingly remembered, or forgotten, or never known at all.

NATION OF VILLAGES

It's a world that survives rich and wholesome despite a century of being drained of its population.

In 1880, most Americans lived on farms and only 28.2 percent in cities with more than 2,500 population. At the close of the century President Woodrow Wilson had his own way of describing America's past:

"The history of a nation," he said, "is only the history of its villages written large."

However, since then the migration away from rural America has continued apace. In 1960, 15.6 million still lived on farms and small towns. Only 10 years later, there were 9.7 million.

On the other hand, a small-town banker in Minnesota may have been speaking for many rural Americans when he told a writer that the flight from the farms has leveled off.

In only the last decade, Vermont has acquired a shadow population of part-time residents almost equal to its permanent population.

QUOTES OF PRAISE

Quote after quote in the book praises rural America: "Here a person is somebody." "Here we don't have to put up with crowds." "Everybody here is as good as everybody else." "It's a great place to raise kids." "I like to live in a town where I'm called by my first name." "Here I can leave a footprint."

Many new rural Americans came as greenhorns. A college graduate turned down a promising bank job to become a fledgling and then highly successful pig farmer. A picture editor of a city newspaper moved his family to a New England village and a new life of repairing cars.

Rural living still has chronic problems. "The trouble is there's nothing to hold the young people," says a prairie farmer's wife. "There are no jobs, no opportunities..."

There is more than one side to small town life. "People still take an interest in one another," says one man. Others complain about busybodies.

And a man living on a former dairy farm had this view: "Having a piece of land affects a man. He watches every little change in the weather, in the seasons. And he learns to be himself."

TJC Pre-Register Begins July 29

TEMPLE

Students preregister alphabetically through August 16 with late preregistration scheduled for August 19-23. Formal registration for classes will be held August 28 and 29. Mr. Stout said.

Students must report to the counter in the Registrar's Office on the day assigned in the preregistration schedule listed below.

After the preregistration conference, the student will receive a registration number which will determine his time of registration for the fall semester.

To apply for admission, new students, transfer students, and former students who did not attend TJC during the 1973-74 school year must file applications for admission and health forms before preregistering, Mr. Stout said. Official transcripts that include any high school or college work attempted must be submitted also. Stu may be admitted on a conditional basis until their transcripts have been received by TJC, Mr. Stout explained.

Market Weekly Report

Beef counters continue to be well stocked and forequarter cuts show most attractive prices, according to one consumer marketing education specialist.

"Greater consumer demands for beef hindquarters have raised prices on those cuts while lowering prices on forequarters," Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Tex A&M University System, said this week.

"Look for best beef buys on ground beef, round steaks, chuck roasts and steaks, and liver.

"Pork supplies are usually lower in summer and the higher prices reflect this condition now. However, several pork cuts--smoked hams, loin cuts and the Boston butt--are among the better meat values," the specialist noted.

Poultry is another good buy. Whole and cut up fryers are priced low and the quality of the birds on the market is excellent, the specialist reported.

Fresh fruit items in best supply at most economical prices include oranges, bananas, nectarines, peaches, pineapples, plums, cantaloupe, honeydew melons and watermelons.

Best vegetable buys are cabbage, carrots, squash okra, corn, radishes, green onions and dry yellow onions, the specialist said.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS

Cheese is a good bargain now because prices have dropped as a result of larger than usual supplies.

Ridgeway Reunion Set For July 20

13 Students Rank High At TAMU

COLLEGE STATION

Thirteen students from the Cameron area have earned "Distinguished Student" ranking at Texas A&M University, announced Registrar Robert A. Lacey.

The undergraduate honor is awarded students who have excelled academically. Recipients must earn at least a 3.25 grade point ration (out of a possible 4.0) during the most recent grading period.

"Distinguished Studnet" ranking is limited to 10 per cent of TAMU's undergraduate enrollment.

Cameron area students are Hulbert L. Allison, senior agricultural economics; Dean R. Appling, freshman biology; John M. Chubb, Jr., freshman pre-medicine; Thomas R. Green, senior industrial distribution; Frank J. Hanel, senior mechanical engineering; Charles A. Hoelscher, sophomore mechanical engineering; Wayne T. Kirk, junior horticulture Ronald W. Kleb, freshman environmental design; Clifford D. Marburger, senior agricultural education; Martin J. Mueck, senior agricultural education; Alan G. Raschke, senior zoology' Colleen S. Walker, junior educational curriculum and instruction; and Michael J. Willy, freshman educational curriculum and instruction.

White Says '73 Good Crop Year

Texas walked off with a number of nationwide firsts in the 1973 agricultural sweepstakes--first in cotton, grain sorghum, cabbage, spinach and watermelon production.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reported that record high yields were set for cotton, corn, grain sorghum, wheat, oats, hay and Irish potatoes, and substantial increases occurred in soybeans and barley.

"Though we are in the midst of a shortage of energy, paper and several other needs, we are not in a shortage of our most basic needs, food and fiber," White said.

Legend has it that Chalchas the soothsayer, died of laughter at the thought of having outlived the predicted hour of his death.

PICKLE FELLERS:

Well, it is baseball season in Houston again! As usual, all the Bayou Disc Jockeys spent the spring telling their non-sports listeners the Astros would win the National League pennant. Ever since that 10-game Houston losing streak, those instant sports League pennant. Ever since experts have had their daily kicks holding a nose and calling the Astros bums. But, wait, now! Preston's People go on a July binge, win 10 of 13, and guess what: Yep, the weatherman, the straight news guy and even Fat Alvin are calling for all their flock to meet 'em at the Astrodome, "To start OUR drive to the pennant." Clowns.

QUICKIES:

Don't look now, but isn't Former Astro Slugger Jimmy Wynn in his usual mid-season slump? It'll be interesting to observe what Dodger Genius Walt Alston does to resurrect his early-season star. He traded Richie Allen, after one year, you know ... First impression of World Football League action on TV? No quarterbacks, no running backs, few defensive backs, ugly uniforms. But, the WFLs are probably as good as the AFLs of 1960. And, look where they are now.

Football experts around the Southwest are asking who will be the top running back in the SWC this fall; Texas A&M Bubba Bean or Texas A&M Skip Walker?. . .Forrest Wiegand, Darrell Royal's National Championship Longhorn Center out of Edna is now Coach Wiegand. He's an aide to Carrol Lundin at La Porte. . . Well, the Texas High School Coaches All-Star game returns to the Astrodome in a couple weeks. Last time there, in 1972, they turned loose the greatest array of classy Bubba Bean, Joe Washington, Wayne Morris, Ronnie Littleton, Kenny Harrison, Kerry Jackson, Marty Akin, and Alvin Bowers. # Boating Safety Is No Accident

Question: Where can you have a raft of troubles, feel sinking spells, be up the creek without a paddle, and/or experience more leaks than some grand juries?

Answer: In the waterways of Texas, where caution counts.

"Boating is one of summer's greatest enjoyments, "J. O. (Jim) Smith, chairman of the Texas Insurance Advisory Association, said recently," but common sense should prevail, whether using a raft or houseboat, or anything else that floats."

Statistics are a grim reminder that casting off can be a pain instead of a pleasure.

Last year in Texas, there were 65 deaths by drowning, 3 by disappearance, 6 by other means. There were 127 injuries as the result of falling overboard, falling within the boat, burns, being struck by a boat or its propeller, and being pinched or crushed.

Accidents happened while cruising, maneuvering to dock, towing a skier or something else, being towed, simply drifting and by other means. Most were while the craft was in motion, but accidents did occur while at anchor, fueling, or at the dock.

Most accidents were caused by an improper lookout in an open motorboat and in the afternoon in nontidal waters.

"You might think bad weather was a culprit, " Smith said, "but when accidents happened visibility nearly always was good and clear, with calm waters and only light wind. When you think about it, this is naturally the time more people will be out in their boats. Caught up in the fun of boating, many simple put their guard sown and were careless."

The property damage from the 221 major boating accidents reported in Texas last year was $330,207, for an average of $1494 per accident, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department which maintains boating accident statistics.

Nationally in 1973 , according to the United States Coast Guard, there were 5, 322 accidents (up 10%over the previous year), more than 1,700 deaths, 1,500 injuries and $11 million in property damage.

"No matter how well designed and engineered a boat is," Smith said, "using it in the wrong waters or trying to exceed the limitations of speed or capacity for which it was built automatically make it unsafe. An obvious but exaggerated example is that no rowboat is designed to be oceangiong."

The TIAA recommends these precautions before launch:

-check the vessel for physical soundness

-review and know all boating and water safety rules.

Rules Tight For Harmful Fish Permits

Commissioners of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department gave staff members authority to restrict th number and type of permits issued for keeping fish such as piranhas and others which the department considers potentially harmful if introduced into the state's waters.

Department executive director Clayton Garrison now has the authority to discontinue the issuance of permits except for educational, scientific or public aquaria use.

Private hobbyists who now hold permits for walking catfish, piranhas and the like will be allowed to maintain the fish but not replace specimens which doe.

"No new fish can be bought or imported by private collectors once their currently permitted fish die," said Garrison.

"Our old system of permits," said Garrison, "had no provision for annual renewal and such permits were issued rather indiscriminately which resulted in the sale and exchange of large numbers of potentially harmful fish."

Since January 1974, T-P&WD staff members have cancelled some 395 permits of the 1,732 issued and are in the process of cancelling another 387.

Some 589 active permits are currently outstanding for 2,418 fish.

aluminum saves energy

• • • in automobiles, lightweight aluminum parts help get better mileage and save gas

• • • in homes, aluminum insulation helps keep you winter warm and summer cool while it saves energy

• • • in trucks and trains, aluminum saves energy by lightening things that move or are moved

• • • in the electrical industry, aluminum transmission conductors save money to hold down the cost of your power

And when aluminum has finally done its job, it pays a bonus because it can be recycled back to molten metal for only 5 percent of the energy required to make it the first time.

People like Denson Rubac, an Ingot Casting Operator at Rockdale Works will tell you these are ways aluminum saves both energy and resources. And they should know — they work with the metal which saves as it serves.

HOW TO SELECT FRESH GREENS!

When some people think of fresh greens, they usually think of those leaves and stems that are served cooked, such as spinach, mustard, collard, kale and turnip tops. Others think of salad things such as bibb and head lettuce, escarole, or endive. And, of course, some greens can be used either way.

Most greens, however they are used, are high in many vitamins and minerals, yet low in calories – the weight watcher's delight. The key to vitamins and minerals content is the color. Usually, the darker the color, the higher the content of vitamins A and C, and iron.

The key to the good selection of greens is freshness. The leaves should look fresh, be crisp and tender, free from injury or insect damage. The stems should be small, never large and coarse. Head lettuce should be firm and compact, free from rusty tips or a burned appearance.

While freshness is the key for selection, you can help retain that goodness at home. As with all fresh produce, take greens home promptly and store them properly. Most people prefer to wash greens before storage. If you do, be sure to drain them well before placing them in a plastic bag. For best results, store greens in the vegetable section of the refrigerator for only a few days before using them.

One pound of bulk greens yields an average of two cups when cooked. Use as little water as possible for spinach, young mustard, chard or beet tops, and cook them only until they are tender. The more mature mustard, turnip and collard greens require more water and longer cooking. Season your greens to suit your taste with bits of bacon or ham.
